

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

This chapter presents introduction of the research. It contains background, statements of problem, purpose and significance of the research, and definition of key terms.

1.1 Background

There are many languages in the world. A state and others have different languages. The difference makes people learn other languages to make easier their communication and interaction with others who have different language. At least people have one language that is mother language. In fact, there are many people who master more than one language, such as their national language and foreign language.

However, there are many foreign languages in our country, Indonesia. One of the foreign languages is English. As we know, English plays an important role in the world. As an international language, it is used to disseminate any information dealing with modern science and technology.

In interacting and communicating with others, we have to understand the language. Therefore, to understand the language, we need to translate the source language to the target language. There are many definitions of translation, the definitions are: